An Intimate Evening in Stonehenge

Instructor: Dr. Richard Jacob

1 session: Monday, March 13, 2017 | 1:00 – 2:30 p.m.
Connections Program Room at the Tempe Public Library
3500 S. Rural Rd., Tempe, AZ 85282

Lecture: Stonehenge and its surrounding Neolithic monuments are visited in light of the most recent archaeological findings. Who built Stonehenge and how, and where and how did they live while doing it? Make sure to put this early afternoon lecture on your solar calendar!

Instructor: Richard Jacob, PhD, taught physics at all levels at ASU for almost 40 years before retiring. He served as chair of the department of physics and astronomy and is the founding dean of the Emeritus College at ASU. His teaching areas emphasized quantum physics, relativity, electrodynamics, and mathematical physics, and his research is in theoretical elementary particle physics.
