

Phoenix Rising: The Strange But True Stories of an Improbable Metropolis

Dr. Eduardo Pagán

Thursday, Dec. 1, 2016

10:00 a.m. – noon

Concho Room at the Westward Ho
618 N. Central Ave, Phoenix, AZ 85004

From down-on-their-luck hobos who struck pay dirt with cow manure, to lost English gentlemen who found their way out West, ASU Professor and History Detective Eduardo Pagán will provide an overview of the fascinating people who contributed to the rise of Phoenix from the ruins of the Hohokam settlements.

Instructor: Eduardo Pagán, Ph.D., is ASU's Bob Stump Endowed Professor of history, and an associate dean in the New College of Interdisciplinary Arts and Sciences. Dr. Pagán was also a co-host for "History Detectives" on PBS and has worked as a historical consultant for documentary films and television shows. Dr. Pagán's published works include "Murder at the Sleepy Lagoon: Race and Riot in Wartime L.A.," "Historic Photos of Phoenix," and "Remembering Phoenix."

This presentation is brought to you by the Osher Lifelong Learning Institute at ASU (OLLI at ASU) and the Center for Applied Behavioral Health Policy as part of the ASU Collaboratory on Central initiatives at the Westward Ho.

Registration information

The event is free and open to Westward Ho residents and OLLI at ASU members.

- Westward Ho residents interested in attending this event can sign up inside the Collaboratory.
- OLLI at ASU members can register at: lifelonglearning.asu.edu/registration or by calling 602-543-6440.

Parking validation for this free event is not provided.

